8. TEACHING

(a) Areas of special interest and accomplishments

- 1) Dental Public Health: I have developed and I now direct a graduate program as combined Master of Public Health with a Diploma in Dental Public Health. I have also helped to develop the Professionalism and Community Services (PACS) undergraduate module with community services as its main pedagogy; I coordinate year 2 of PCAS. My interests here are curriculum development, scholarly teaching, outreach educational and hands-on activities in various communities, and community health-promotion projects (development, implementation and sustainability).
- 2) HPV/HIV and Sexual Medicine: I am interested in the triad HPV-Oral Sex-Oral Cancer as per the public health beliefs and behaviors and professional attitudes, as well as point-of-care screening. I am also interested in stigma as experienced by marginalized groups and the extent to which they use public health services.
- 3) Dental Geriatrics: Within this discipline, I am interested in the various models of oral health, measurement of oral health-related quality of life through dental psychometrics, oral health of frail older adults, and the provision of dental care in long-term care facilities. I am also teaching this content to undergraduate DMD (2nd year) and graduate prosthodontics.

9. SCHOLARLY AND PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

The focus of my scholarly activities is dental public health (DPH) within the specific areas outlined under 8.a and 9.a. By using both qualitative and quantitative approaches to DPH, I am able to investigate curricular development and interprofessional care (within the PACS modules), access to care and its barriers and facilitators (issues of stigma and health determinants), community engagement (program planning, development and evaluation) and dental geriatrics (frailty, outreach initiatives, oral care and quality of life models and measurement).

(a) Areas of special interest and accomplishments

Item 8(a) plus three other specific areas of research:

- 1) Community-based Research – Access to care & Stigma: I conducted a pilot study with a grant from the UBC Faculty of Dentistry by means of individual interviews with dentists and with people living with HIV. This data was used on a successful Vancouver Foundation grant, and in a manuscript that is in progress.
- 2) Cross Cultural Research – Dental psychometrics sensitive to non-English speaking elderly immigrants. This area follows my PhD research and aims to discuss the process used to produce and translate English-based questionnaires into languages other than English. I am a collaborator on CIHR-grant funded research on the same topic and have co-supervised an MSc student with a focus on Korean older adults.

- 3) Dental Education – The use of reflection as a learning tool. I conducted a series of studies about students' reflections in the PACS module (funded by S. Wah Leung Endowment Fund). These studies explored how to better guide undergraduate students' reflections. Students were involved in data collection and analysis. Eight publications were generated on student reflections while enabling me to discuss and explore different pedagogical approaches to teach undergraduate and graduate students on issues of dental public health.

1. Development of the combined Master of Public Health/Diploma in Dental Public Health: <http://www.dentistry.ubc.ca/Education/Grad/MPH/DentalPublicHealth/default.asp>
After completing the MPH in May 2012, I was inspired and supported to develop the second program in dental public health in Canada. With help from faculty members and online resources on existing dental public health programs, I proposed a combined MPH with a Diploma in Dental Public Health to our Faculty of Medicine – School of Population and Public Health. With letters of support from various local, national and international organizations including faculties and health authorities, a Memorandum of Understanding was firmed between the UBC Faculties of Dentistry and Medicine, which formalized this program. Within 20 months, we were able to get all the necessary University approvals to start our first intake of graduate students this past August, 2014.

Others

1. Since March 2012 I have been working with an international group of researchers from UFRGS University, Brazil (Drs G Gameiro and C Mengatto), University of the Witwatersrand, Pretoria, South Africa (Dr P Owen) and UBC (Dr M MacEntee) on the use of the Oral Health Impact Profile questionnaire (via qualitative research) and on a simplified method to fabricate complete dentures (via clinical trial) for the geriatric population. This initiative started after a meeting with the Brazilian team leader (Mengatto) in July/2012 in Porto Alegre, Brazil, which lead me to supervise one of her undergraduate students (Rodrigo Kern) from that university here at UBC in 2012/13. Kern was funded by the Science Without Borders program from the Brazilian Government. The team has now drafted two papers that are aimed for peer review publication out of that study.
2. Since January 2014 I have been working with Health Canada and OraSure Inc, the manufacture of the oral swabs for HIV and HCV screening tests, to have these testes approved for use and commercially available in Canada. Once approved, OraSure Inc will donate 1000 tests (500 for HIV and 500 for HCV) to UBC dentistry so I can start evaluating their uptake by patients within dental and dental hygiene settings. By 2016 I plan to have some of the data collected from this evaluation to be presented at the Annual Conference by Canadian Association of Public Health Dentistry in that year.
3. Since July 2014 I have been involved with a team of academics and dental professionals brought together by the British Columbia Dental Association. The team is discussing the development of a province-level oral health survey to involve approximately 3000 subjects, and gathering clinical data (disease prevalence, etc) as well as demographic information via questionnaires (self-perceived oral health, etc). We are now discussing the items that should be included in the clinical assessment as well as the items for the questionnaire. The survey is likely to take place during summer of 2015. Such valuable data have a potential to be used for graduate research work as well as peer review publications and reports.

4. Since August 2014 I have been part of an interdisciplinary team of researchers from five different Faculties of Dentistry in Canada. This team met face-to-face on a symposium on interdisciplinarity hosted by McGill University – Faculty of Dentistry, in September 2014. As the team’s PA, we have just submitted a funding application for a team building workshop through the Network for Canadian Oral health Research. If approved, the workshop will likely to happen during summer 2015 in Vancouver and will bring together members from various Canadian Faculties of Dentistry and Dental Hygiene Programs as well as representatives from public health sectors to discuss special care dentistry under the lens of patient-centred care.
5. In November 2014 I was approached by Dr Steven Patterson from UofA to participate on the Leadership Competencies for Public Health Practice project. More specifically, I was invited to take part in a Delphi process involving 10 other academics and researchers in Canada to build a set of leadership competencies for use by seven disciplines in public health (nursing, community medicine, public health nutrition, health promotion, epidemiology, environmental health/inspection, public health dentistry). The Delphi process will facilitate communication among public health professional leaders about a draft set of leadership competency statements for public health practice in Canada. The process involves three phases of rating and revising these competency statements. The desired outcome is consensus regarding a final set of leadership competency statements for public health practice in Canada. The Delphi is expected to begin in December 2014, and will span approximately six months.
6. In January 2015 I was approached by Dr L Marchini to write an international collaborative peer reviewed paper describing what is happening at the Gerodontology arena in Canada together with Dr L Donnelly. The idea is to gather information from major centers worldwide and jointly write a snapshot of the state of the art in geriatric dentistry education and practice across different countries. Dr Donnelly and I are currently collecting information to be submitted as a first draft by February 29, for publication by Summer 2016 preferably at Gerodontology Journal.
